»Since Nordea is such a big organisation, there are always new sets of data to analyse and new projects to look into. Every day is different.«

Plenty of room for me to progress

Although Przemysław Mikulski joined Nordea during the coronavirus lockdown in May 2020, he still had a great onboarding process. He has found the open company culture to be empowering since his friendly and approachable colleagues have been so willing to share their knowledge with him.

Przemysław is from Poland and got his bachelor's degree in Telecommunication and Computer Science in his home country. During his time of study, he participated in an exchange programme in Denmark, fell in love with the Danish way of educating engineers, and decided to pursue a Master's degree in Digital Media Engineering at DTU. Upon graduation, he spent two years working for other companies before joining Nordea.

»I chose Nordea because they have a reputation for being an innovative bank. Their way of working is very data driven, which is interesting to me,« he says and goes on to explain:

»As a Senior Data Scientist, my job is basically about crunching data. I do quantitative studies to understand how financial products such as mortgages and loans are performing, as well as mathematical modelling to predict how new products will perform. Since Nordea is such a big organisation, there are always new sets of data to analyse and new projects to look into. Every day is different.«

FOCUS ON PERSONAL GROWTH

During the first two weeks of his employment, Przemysław only met his colleagues online, due to the coronavirus lockdown. Still, he found the onboarding process to be structured, efficient and empowering: »The working environment in Nordea is really nice. People are very skilful, approachable and happy to help, so it is easy to gain knowledge and expand your network,« he says and adds:

»In general, there is plenty of room for me to progress in Nordea. They focus on personal growth, and you are encouraged to fine-tune your skills. Nordea offers a wide range of internal courses. For instance, I have trained in the SAFe Agile methodology as well as Nordea's data and databases. It has been a steep learning curve.«
